

Short distance vision chart

D O T
GLASSES

She looked at the rising moon. It was rising above the houses. It was big and orange. It looked bigger than the rising sun. How could it be so big? How could it be so orange?

She looked at the rising moon. It was rising above the houses. It was big and orange. It looked bigger than the rising sun. How could it be so big? How could it be so orange?

She looked at the rising moon. It was rising above the houses. It was big and orange. It looked bigger than the rising sun. How could it be so big? How could it be so orange?

She looked at the rising moon. It was rising above the houses. It was big and orange. It looked bigger than the rising sun. How could it be so big? How could it be so orange?

Use symbols (naming or identifying the odd symbol) for illiterate customers or customer not being able to read Latin alphabet. Hold the chart 40cm from customer's eyes. For literate customers, you may use any local language book or newspapers.

As an alternative, use a little box with rice mixed with little stones or needle and a thread.